JOSEPH PFINGSTL — A New Seedling—Patent No. 927. — A very large blossom about 5 inches in diameter, incomplete double, colors of Scarlet, Crimson, Dark Red, radiate in the flower. The petals on the outer edge are waved and become fluted toward the center, where they surround a group of yellow stamens and stand like rabbit ears. Other stamens are intermixed with the petals. The fluted erect central petals add depth to the bloom giving it somewhat of a hemispherical appearance.

Some of the blooms may be large imbricated, formal, double, having the same characteristics and may or may not show stamens when fully open.

Vigorous sturdy growth with large, broad, dark green serrated foliage.

The blooming season extends from the middle of October until about the middle of April. It is very hardy and the blooms last for days, holding their form and color well, especially when in partial shade. The all winter bloomer.
